ORIGIN COFFEE

Sell the confidence behind the coffee.

Win established hospitality businesses by making Origin's expertise a compelling reason to choose their next coffee partner.

A marketing hypothesis grounded in public evidence. Fictional test; no discovery statements or Origin financial data.

THE MARKETING OPPORTUNITY

Win the operators already serving.

Target established cafés and boutique hotel groups ready to upgrade. Turn Origin's training, equipment and operational expertise into persuasive proof of a more confident coffee service—and a credible reason to switch.

A LARGE MARKET. A MORE PRECISE WAY TO WIN.

01

A £6.8bn battleground

UK branded coffee shops recorded £6.8bn in sales and 12,313 outlets in 2025. The opportunity deserves a sharper audience choice than "anyone serving coffee". [1]

02

Look beyond new openings

Meaningful Vision reports opening growth of 0.8% in H1 2026, down from 4.5% in H1 2024. Established operators merit attention alongside start-ups. [2]

03

Make support mean more

Origin offers training, equipment and support. Union and Extract do too. The marketing task: make the value to a specific operator more compelling and demonstrable. [3]

ORIGIN COFFEE / FIELDWORK PROPOSAL

Find the customers. Build the advantage. Show the way to growth.

A focused wholesale growth strategy: choose the right operators, give them a stronger reason to switch, and build the marketing to reach them.

Expertise that earns a place behind the bar.

NARRATIIVE VIEW

THREE OUTPUTS. ONE WHOLESALE GROWTH STRATEGY.

Find the growth audience

Prioritise established cafés and boutique hotel groups: buyer needs, supplier-switching triggers and reachable account opportunity. Know who to pursue first and why.

Make Origin the compelling choice

Define competitive whitespace, positioning, message strategy, proof and creative direction. Make Origin's practical expertise matter to the operators it can serve best.

Build the route to market

Set channel, content and partnership strategy, investment priorities and a measurable 90-day growth plan to turn the proposition into qualified wholesale demand.
